

Opposition

A person may file an action with the court against the owner of a utility model for the revocation of the registration if the person finds that:

- 1) the registered utility model does not comply with §§ 5-9 of the Utility Models Act;
- 2) the invention has not been described in the description with sufficient accuracy and clarity, so that an expert of the field can implement the invention, or
- 3) the invention does not correspond to the invention as disclosed in the initial registration application.

An action specified before may be filed even after the registration has expired.

If a registration is revoked, the Estonian Patent Office shall delete the registration entry if the owner of the utility model or a specified person files an application accompanied by a copy of the court judgment which has entry into force with the Estonian Patent Office [Utility Models Act § 47].
